Deployment Cycle Support Services

Deployment Cycle Support (DCS) is a comprehensive process that ensures Soldiers and their families are better prepared and sustained throughout the deployment cycle. It provides a means to identify Soldiers and families who may need assistance with the challenges inherent to extended deployments. Personal reconstitution for Soldiers is both commanders' and sergeants' business, and the Army provides them with the right tools and training to execute the mission. The goal of the DCS process is to facilitate Soldier and family well-being throughout the deployment cycle. All Soldiers deployed away from home station for 90 days or more will complete the DCS process. Services for families are integrated in every stage of the process, and they are highly encouraged to take advantage of the resources provided.

Seven Stages of the Deployment Cycle Support :

Train-up / Preparation

Mobilization

Deployment

Post-Deployment

Reconstitution

Employment

Redeployment

Maine Military Community Services
Family Program Division

On behalf of the entire team we would like to extend our great appreciation to those who serve in the US military and those who support our military service members and families.

Our dedicated staff has one sole purpose which is providing reliable, relevant and timely information, resources, and training that will support our current military families, without regard to branch of service or status.

We staff our division with highly dedicated professionals and enhance it with the network of dedicated volunteers and extensive outreach to government, state and local agencies. In true Maine fashion, we are very resourceful, and leave no stone unturned when it comes to helping those we care about.

Throughout this handbook, you will find a description of many programs offered, and points of contact. We sincerely hope that when you think you are in possible need of a service, you will call upon our organization for guidance and assistance.

Notes:

Yellow Ribbon Reintegration Program

The 2008 National Defense Authorization Act-Public Law 110-181 Section 582 enacted the Yellow Ribbon Reintegration Program for all Guard and Reserve units. The YRRP specifies educational and support programs that must be provided before, during and after deployment for Service Members and their families.

The purpose of this guide is to give our soldiers and their families, a quick, easy to use resource for finding information about these programs and services that are available to them, especially when the Service Member is deployed. There are many services and resources which can help families deal with the changes deployment brings.

We want to provide you with everything we can to help you remain independent, resilient and successful during this time.

For a listing of upcoming Yellow Ribbon events, call: 207-430-5771 or visit on the web at www.jointservicesupport.org.

Family Readiness Group (FRG)

Volunteer Opportunity

What is a Family “Readiness” Group (FRG)?

A Family Readiness Group (FRG) is a professional volunteer organization. Every National Guard unit, battalion or headquarters has a FRG, which is a commanders program. The folks that make up the FRG group want to help families meet the challenges of military life by working with the unit and the State Family Programs Office.

Who can belong to an FRG? Anyone interested in the military and its members can be part of this professional volunteer group. Spouses and children, parents, friends and relatives, retired service members, community members or service members too.

What can an FRG do for me? An FRG can help strengthen your relationship with the military family through: COMMUNICATION which provides a forum to ask questions and share ideas and concerns, SHARING which provides the opportunity to share volunteer work together and plan activities that make military life easier and more rewarding and SUPPORT, being the link to help families support each other. People who understand the military life are a source of strength and comfort to one another.

What are some of the things an FRG does as a volunteer group?

Develop “Telephone Tree, E-mail tree, Newsletter or Website”

Organize “Open Houses, Classes or Workshops”

Organize “Family Days”

Embrace “Sponsorship” programs

Others would be “Adopting a Deployed Unit”

Why is an FRG so important? An FRG can help families and service members face the possibility of mobilization and deployment.

During normal National Guard duty an FRG provides the opportunities for families to meet and form a strong network. This network of families and military personnel makes facing mobilization and deployment more manageable.

During Mobilization or Deployment your FRG network will work together to help each other get what they need by reaching out to state resources like the Military Family Assistance Center. Ready families make it easier for the service members to concentrate on their duties, and less time worrying about family, because they know their Family are in good hands.

How do I find out if my service member's unit has an FRG? How do I get involved? Contact: State Family Readiness Assistant at the State Family Programs Office at 207-430-5779

Employer Support of the Guard and Reserve (ESGR) is a Department of Defense (DoD) organization. It is a staff group within the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Reserve Affairs (OASD/RA), which is in itself a part of the Office of the Secretary of Defense (OSD).

The nation's Reserve components (referring to the total of all National Guard members and Reserve forces from all branches of the military) comprise approximately 48 percent of our total available military manpower. The current National Defense Strategy indicates that the National Guard and Reserve will be full partners in the fully integrated Total Force. Our Reserve forces will spend more time away from the workplace defending the nation, supporting a demanding operations tempo and training to maintain their mission readiness

In this environment, civilian employers play a critical role in the defense of the nation by complying with existing employment laws protecting the rights of workers who serve in the Reserve component.

ESGR was established in 1972 to promote cooperation and understanding between Reserve component members and their civilian employers and to assist in the resolution of conflicts arising from an employee's military commitment. It is the lead DoD organization for this mission under DoD Directive 1250.1.

Today, ESGR operates through a network of thousands of volunteers throughout the nation and Guam, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.
